

Dear FCC Administrator,

I'm writing to comment on NAB's petition 04-160 which is attempting to limit satellite radio's ability to broadcast local traffic and weather information. I count on, and pay for, satellite radio's services, which I use every day, both in my car and at home. I see no rationale, as a consumer and citizen, that would support restricting my ability to choose my provider for these services. The convergence of entertainment and basic information providers is occurring every where you look in these days of rapid change - other industries need to evolve and upgrade to stay competitive - it makes no sense to hold back innovation that can help us better achieve our daily goals in life.

Please consider my input and reject the petition from NAB.

Respectfully,

James Robbins
